FROM THE EDITORS

A narrative or story means a report of consecutive events, sewed together with a thread of a plot. Narratives are familiar to us from literature, drama, cinema, video games, visual arts and social media. In this issue, under Elements of Style section, Dr. Emilia Korkea-Aho explains us how storytelling can be utilized in academic writing.

According to Korkea-aho storytelling means that the writer takes the reader's hand and leads him or her through the text. The writer's aim is to convince the reader. Skill to simplify complicated research problems is mandatory for the writer with a storyteller orientation. The core of the good academic article, narrative, is an intriguing argument which hooks the reader.

Storytelling and narratives are not only writing techniques or literary devices. In this issue Olena Sihvo shows us, that progress narrative is an essential element in global constitutionalism and international law. Classical progress narratives are flawed and problematic. Can global constitutionalism overcome these flaws with an alternative interpretation of progress? Sihvo's article is an elegant contribution to a topical academic discussion.

SUBMISSIONS

Articles and other contributions may currently be submitted to the Board of Editors in the email address submissions@helsinkilawreview.fi or through our website at www.helsinkilawreview.fi.

Articles are selected for editing shortly after the publication of the previous issue. Helsinki Law Review accepts articles and other writings in English, Swedish and Finnish. Submissions should not exceed the length of 25 size A4 sheets. Each submission selected for publication will be edited in active co-operation with the author(s) as well as evaluated anonymously by a referee chosen by the Board of Editors.

In addition to research articles and case commentaries, Helsinki Law Review is also interested in publishing other types of writings, such as book reviews.

Any contributor wishing to publish an article based on a Master's thesis is requested to draft the article within the requested length limit before submitting. A copy of the original Master's thesis may be included for the Board's reference as a separate appendix, but not submitted alone.

For further information, please contact the Board of Editors at hlr-toimitus@pykala.fi. Thank you for your submission!

Subscriptions

Helsinki Law Review is currently available for free subscription at www.helsinkilawreview.fi to organizations. Free copies are distributed to various libraries, faculties and student organisations. To obtain a free personal copy, please visit the Pykälä ry office (open Tuesday till Thursday, 12 p.m. – 5 p.m.) or contact the Board Secretary. See inner front cover for contact details.
